I was a young boy. I often played with my brother. He was an extremely brave boy. My mother made a toy car for us. It was made of yak-dung. In the winter we often played with our yak-dung car. There were two small holes on the sides of the car. We put a long rope through the car. We often pulled it behind us. One day my brother stepped on the car and broke it into pieces. I was angry with my brother. But I know I could not beat him. I just went back home. I did not play with him.

The sun was bright. My grandmother sat on a dry sheep skin by the door. She was chanting and turning a prayer wheel with her right hand. I sat on Grandmother’s lap. She was not wearing a shirt. I sucked her nipples. There was no milk. I liked to listen to Grandmother’s folktales. I also liked to hear stories about her childhood. I disturbed her chanting. She was kind to me and told me about her childhood. It was a really interesting story. It was also a tragic story. I stopped listening to her because I felt very sad. I put my arms around Grandmother’s neck and cried for some minutes.
